TERRY.

There is a big tide in the Middle Fork and a large quantity of timber has passed here. George Griffith was here last Saturday. H. C. Valentine, county surveyor of Leslie county, was a visitor at this place last week and while here caught thirty-five nice sucker fish. On February 26, a surveying crew from Leslie county stopped at this place while on their way to Oakdale to survey a railway from Oakdale to Hyden. Last Friday Allen Nantz, Sheriff of Leslie county, with three prisoners he was taking to Stanton to be placed in jail there until court convenes at Hyden in June, stopped at residence of THE NEWS correspondent. Mr. Case, a timber man from Arkansas, also stopped with us several days. Isaac Gilbert was here recently on business. Miss Cattie Terry, who has been attending school at Berea, has returned home. Miles Terry has his ground turned and is ready for farming. Harve Riley and a Mr. Burns, of Buckhorn, were here Sunday. Misses Cattie and Mary Terry visited the family of Breck Herald Sunday. Sheriff Breck Crawford was a visitor at Miles Terry's a few days ago. Isaac Terry, who is attending school at Berea, visited his parents here last week. W. M. Terry was here last Saturday. Irvine Short was here a few days ago. Mrs. Lorraine Terry, who has been quite sick for the past few days, is improving. Joe Terry, of Turkey, was here the first of the week. Mrs. Granville Jett, of Athol, visited her parents here recently. Miss Emma Herald, of Herald, made a business trip here last Friday.

PERRY COUNTY. STACY.

Ira Allen died February 23, of fever. He was the son of Irvine Allen, of Breathitt county.

Mrs. Betsy Campbell, the wife of Floyd Campbell, died February 24, of a complication of diseases. She leaves a host of friends to mourn her loss.

The little daughter of Anderson Hays and wife died on February 23. There are two more cases of fever in the family and one of these, a little boy, is not expected to live.

Kentucky vs. Indian Territory.

A Lincoln county man last spring became infatuated with the rapturous stories of the West, teeming with prosperity and undeveloped wealth, disposed of his interests in Kentucky and located in the Indian Territory. There he purchased a farm and cultivated it to find that its powers of production were about half as prolific as the soil of Kentucky and that the markets are much inferior. In fact, the same grade of corn that is now selling in Kentucky at 75 cents per bushel is a drag on the Indian Territory market at half that amount. So this now wiser Kentuckian contends that one acre of good land in Kentucky is worth four in the West, and he has the figures on it and figures won't lie.

One on the Girls.

Girls, did you ever stop to think that boys have more self respect than the members of your sex? There is not a young man of any respectability that would be seen with a girl that was intoxicated. You might search the streets of Jackson with a fine tooth comb and not find a young man who would lock arms and go promenading with a girl who is puffing a cigar or squirting tobacco juice around on the sidewalk. Some girls have no hesitancy in accepting the company of such boys and too many of them are anxious for the companionship, heart and hand of everything that wears pants. Society will never be refined until the girls demand of the boys the same purity of character that the boys demand of the girls. Over the heads of the young ladies hang the possibilities of the greatest moral reform that ever swept over the country.

TO THE OLD SOLDIERS

Of the Tenth Congressional District of Kentucky.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
WASHINGTON, 2, 23, 1907.

EDITOR NEWS:

The nation has again acknowledged the debt of gratitude it owes to its defenders by the passage of the Service Pension Bill, which was approved by President Roosevelt on February 6. This adds a still more liberal provision to our splendid system of pension laws, already unequalled by that of any other nation. It is estimated that under this act ten or fifteen millions of dollars more will be paid annually to the old soldiers.

In my race for Congress I expressed the opinion that all of the honorably discharged veterans of the Mexican and Civil wars ought to be allowed a pension of at least one dollar a day. I am still of that opinion. It became evident, however, that the law which has just been enacted was the most liberal that could pass Congress now. Consequently, the friends of the soldiers all favored its passage. Much to my regret, I did not have the privilege of voting for the bill, because my term as a member of Congress has not yet begun. However, I took a deep interest in it as the following letter from the author of the bill indicates:

UNITED STATES SENATE,
February 2, 1907.

HON. JOHN W. LANGLEY, Congressman-elect:

In accordance with your suggestion, I made a motion in the Senate for the printing of 10,000 additional copies of the new pension law, and I have instructed the clerk of the committee to let you have several hundred copies of these for distribution in your district.

I was gratified over the active interest you took in this measure while it was pending. Although your term as a member has not yet begun, you have already rendered very valuable service as a member-elect in the cause of the old soldiers, and I am sure that those who live in your district will appreciate the work you are doing in their behalf.

Referring to the cases of the Three Forks battalion, the Capital Guards, and similar Kentucky organizations in whose behalf you have informed me that you expect to introduce a bill at the next session, I shall be pleased to confer with you about these matters then.

Very truly yours,
P. J. McCUMBER, Ch'mn.

Congress did not consider the work that will be involved in prosecuting a claim under this act as sufficient to warrant the allowance of a fee to attorneys, and the act prohibits it. It has occurred to me that by reason of this provision applicants may have some difficulty in getting blanks and information that they will need in presenting their claims. I have accordingly secured from the Commissioner of Pensions a supply of application blanks. On the back of each is printed a copy of the law and instructions in regard to the execution of the application.

I have a list of the names and addresses of most of the soldiers in the district, but unfortunately it does not indicate, in many cases, in which war they served, the character of the service rendered, or what rate of pension they are receiving, if any. For that reason it is impossible for me to determine from this list which ones come within the provisions of this act. I am therefore sending to each a blank and a copy of this communication.

Applications should be filed at the earliest date possible since pension will commence from date of filing. I shall be glad to file applications in the Pension Office if they are sent to me, but I suggest that they be sent direct to the Commissioner of Pensions after February, as I must leave Washington about March 1st.

I was employed by the Government in pension work for eight years, and I feel that my experience in that work will enable me to be of material service to applicants. I am conscious of the fact that without the support of the soldiers I could not have been elected to Congress, and I intend to do everything in my power for the advancement of their interests, not only because of this fact, but because I believe that the Government can not do too much for them. I hope that they will call upon me whenever I can be of service to them, either in advocating legislation in their behalf, or in urging early and favorable action upon their claims in the Pension Office. Very respectfully,
JNO. W. LANGLEY.

The following is the act:

AN ACT—Granting pensions to certain enlisted men, soldiers, and officers who served in the civil war with Mexico.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That any person who served ninety days or more in the military or naval service of the United States during the late civil war or sixty days in the war with Mexico, and who has been honorably discharged therefrom, and who has reached the age of sixty-two years or over, shall, upon making proof of such facts according to such rules and regulations as the Secretary of the Interior may provide, be placed upon the pension roll, and be entitled to receive a pension as follows: In case such person has reached the age of sixty-two years, twelve dollars per month; seventy years, fifteen dollars per month; seventy-five years or over, twenty dollars per month; and such pension shall commence from the date of the filing of the application in the Bureau of Pensions after the passage and approval of this Act; Provided, That pensioners who are sixty-two years of age or over, and who are now receiving pensions under existing laws, or whose claims are pending in the Bureau of Pensions, may, by application to the Commissioner of Pensions in such form as he may prescribe, receive the benefits of this act; and nothing herein contained shall prevent any pensioner or person entitled to a pension from prosecuting his claim and receiving a pension under any other general or special Act: Provided, That no person shall receive a pension under any other law at the same time or for the same period that he is receiving a pension under the provisions of this Act: Provided further, That no person who is now receiving or shall hereafter receive a greater pension under any other general or special law than he would be entitled to receive under the provisions herein shall be pensionable under this Act.

Sec. 2. That rank in the service shall not be considered in applications filed hereunder.

Sec. 3. That no pension attorney, claim agent, or other person shall be entitled to receive any compensation for services rendered in presenting any claim to the Bureau of Pensions, or securing any pension, under this Act.

Passed the Senate January 11, 1907.
Attest: CHARLES G. BENNETT,
Secretary.

FRIDAY, MARCH 8.

All the excuse we have ever seen printed for having Carnes' army among us was that O. H. Pollard and Will Young told Gov. Beckham that a man by the name of Johnson threatened to slap Carnes while here in January.

Dr. B. D. Cox was assassinated in Breathitt county during the administration of Judge Redwine the First. Those accused of the crime are now to be tried in Elliott county, under the administration of Judge Redwine the Second.

It is probable that there is no county in Kentucky that is as remote as Elliott. At least twenty-five miles from a railroad, without a foot of telegraph wire and with only one lone, straggling telephone line running from Morehead, Rowan county, to Sandy Hook, the county seat of Elliott.

Can Bill Carnes or "Mr. Beckingham" give any valid reason why they moved the Hargis trials, over the protest of the Commonwealth's attorneys, to Sandy Hook, in Elliott county, a town about thirty miles from a railroad and with practically no hotel accommodations and a population of only 163, according to the census of 1900, when there are more than 100 counties much more accessible? The witnesses and attorneys could go to Oklahoma or Kansas easier than to Elliott county.

Gov. Beckham appointed Judge Dorsey to sit as Judge to try those accused of the assassination of J. B. Marcum; he also appointed Bill Carnes to act as Judge to try those accused of the assassination of Dr. Cox. It is a peculiar coincidence that both of these Judges wanted to transfer the cases to Elliott county. Judge Dorsey, however, gave the attorneys for the prosecution the privilege of choosing between Elliott, Morgan and Lee counties; Bill Carnes did not give them any privilege at all. It appears that Bill obeyed his boss better than Dorsey.

TROOPS TO GUARD CARNES.

(Courier-Journal.)

Jim Hargis prefers to be tried in Jackson with militiamen to prevent bloodshed while a fair and impartial jury of "his own people" is being selected, and troops are therefore to be sent to the Breathitt capital. But there is every prospect that the presence of soldiers there will have the effect of rendering the trial, if it proceeds, one of the most complete farces in Kentucky.

According to the recent dispatches from Lexington, the prosecution will decline to make a motion for a change of venue upon the ground that it would only result in the case being sent to another county in the mountains where the Hargis influence is as potent as it is in Breathitt. According to recent dispatches from Frankfort, a change of venue has been agreed on. It is to be hoped that the Frankfort report is correct. It is not for the prosecution to assume that Special Judge Carnes would stultify the law by administering it according to the letter, but defeating its spirit. Since it is admitted by everyone that a trial at Jackson without the militia would provoke an outbreak, and since the defense is especially clamorous for military protection it is ridiculous for anyone to contend that there is a prospect for a fair trial in Jackson. It is, therefore, difficult to understand how Judge Carnes could refuse to grant a motion for a change of venue. It is only fair to him to assume that in granting such a motion he would not proclaim himself a tool of Jim Hargis by sending the case to an adjoining county.

In Breathitt and adjoining counties the feud out of which the litigation in question has grown has been the most absorbing topic of discussion for the last five years. It is unreasonable to suppose that there are twelve intelligent men in that section who would be partisans of neither Jim Hargis nor his prosecutors. If a trial is to be had at Jackson or in an adjoining county, it is altogether probable that the jury will be made up at least in part by Hargis partisans. There is, of course, a bare possibility that, because of the feeling against the Hargis clan, the jury might be composed of anti-Hargis men. It would be as unfortunate for the State for the defendant to be found guilty by his enemies as for him to be acquitted by his henchmen. Evidently Jim Hargis, whose sagacity has never been open to discussion, considers the chances of the prosecution to fill the panel with his enemies few, indeed, but the probability of securing an impartial jury is still more remote.

It was demonstrated when the State attempted to prosecute members of the Craig Tpliver gang at Morehead that the presence of the militia merely rendered it safer and easier for the trials to be made farcical. It will be surprising, indeed, if history does not repeat itself if Jim Hargis is tried at Jackson with an army on hand to keep the mob in abeyance. Since the State has nothing to lose by making a motion for a change of venue, and since the intimations of the prosecution that Carnes would not send the case out of the mountains should he grant such a motion would reflect alone upon the judge, why should not the State make the motion and give him an opportunity to prove his impartiality by sending the case out of the feud district, and dismissing the militia? Let the attorneys for the prosecution do their duty, and let them give the judge at least an opportunity to do his.

BILL CARNES COMES

With His Army and Orders
Every One "Sarched," Holds
His "Cote" and Sends Hargis
Cases to Elliott County.

Bill Carnes came here Tuesday at noon accompanied by about 40 soldiers. He came on to the court house at about one o'clock, called his "court" to order without ever having seen Judge Riddell, the regular judge, or giving him time to appear and be present.

He said when he was here in January a mob of armed men was in the court house, but now he had brought the soldiers with him and he was "gwine" to have every man "sarched" that came into the court room, but he would give five minutes for those who had arms to retire and remove them, but as no one retired it seems to us that any sensible man would have inferred that there were no arms in the room, but Bill thought different and ordered every one in the court room to go down stairs and into the street and submit to being "sarched" by Bill's soldiers. He then issued the following order and had the same entered:

BILL'S "SARCHING" ORDER.

It is ordered by the Court that Adjutant General Henry R. Lawrence be and he is hereby directed during all times this court is proceeding with its duties, to have stationed at the foot of each stairway leading to the main court room two soldiers, with strict instructions to "sarch" every man coming into the court room, disarm them of any fire arms they find and placed under arrest any one upon whom fire arms are found. It is also ordered that he have not less than ten soldiers in the court room at all times during the progress of the Court. He is further ordered to arrest any man seen upon the streets or any place in Jackson that may be disorderly or having fire arms about his person, private dwelling houses excepted. He is further ordered to use his best judgment in any way not specified by this order prosecuting order in the town of Jackson. The only persons exempt from "sarch" under this are the Sheriff of Breathitt county and his regular deputies.

He called on the clerk for the indictments and the clerk, as is usual, handed the indictments to the Commonwealth's Attorney. He called on the clerk again for the indictments and Mr. Adams handed them to him. He then called all the cases, no one answering except John Smith. Some one then answered that all the defendants were in the room. Then he called over all the cases again when all the defendants answered except Britton who is in the Lexington jail. As completely ignoring the Commonwealth's Attorney as if he had not been there.

He then said: "I understand that the counsel on both sides of the case wish a change of venue. No agreement has yet been reached and if you can agree I will send it to the county you name. If left with me I will act with my best judgment in the matter."

Attorney Polard for the defense then wanted to know if the defense had asked for a change of venue. The judge seemed confused and said: "No, but it has been in the newspapers and has been talked about and has been suggested to me by adherents of both sides."

The prosecution then wanted to know if they had asked for a change of venue, and practically the same answer was made by Carnes. Attorney Byrd then stated that the prosecution was willing to have a change and would agree to confer with the defense to that effect. W. A. Young then arose and said: "Personally, I have always favored the trying of this case outside of Breathitt from the fact that it has always been the cause of too much prejudiced feeling here. The proposal, however, comes as a surprise, and I am not in a position to conclude on the matter as I have not consulted my client."

Court then adjourned until Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock. Court convened at 9:30 o'clock

Wednesday morning. The attorneys not having agreed on any county to which the venue should be changed, Commonwealth's Attorney Adams, made a motion for a change of venue against James Hargis. After a short argument from the attorneys, Carnes said: "I don't know that my decision shall suit either party. I am very sorry to have to make a selection in the matter, but I don't think it should be held in this circuit. I will send it to where I believe a fair trial will be had, to Martinsburg, Elliott county."

Adams then withdrew the motion of the Commonwealth for a change saying that the decision would not hold good without such a petition. He quoted cases, but Carnes overruled Adams' motion. The Smith and Abner trials will also be taken to Elliott. The Commonwealth moved that the case against John Smith be dismissed, but this was overruled by Carnes. Carnes and Carnes' army left on the 2:20 train Wednesday afternoon for Lexington without ever having to fire a shot or having to take a firearm from any Breathitt county citizen.

MARCUS CASE CONTINUED.

The cases of B. F. French, John Smith and John Abner, charged with the murder of J. B. Marcum, was called by Special Judge Dorsey at Beattyville Monday afternoon. On the calling of the cases neither of the defendants answered and only a few of the witnesses were present. Smith and Abner were not present at all, they being under bond to appear at Jackson as well as at Beattyville. French came into court about 2 o'clock, saying that he was sick, and also reported that his attorneys, J. J. C. Back and Ben B. Golden were both sick, and by consent of Commonwealth's Attorney Adams and the attorneys for the defense; the cases were continued until April 8th, the third week of the regular term of the Lee circuit court.

HARGIS DESIRES CHANGE OF VENUE IN JETT DAMAGE SUIT.

A dispatch of March 4, from Winchester says: The defense in the Hargis-Jett case, which comes up for trial here before Special Judge W. B. Moody, of Eminence, on next Monday, will make a motion for a change of venue on the grounds that they cannot get a fair trial in Clark county. The plaintiff, Sam Jett, has received a letter from Hargis' Attorney in which they state that they will make a motion for a change of venue as soon as court convenes on Monday.

SUES FOR FEE.

Suit for $150 balance due him for services was brought in the Lee Quarterly court Monday by H. L. Wheeler, an attorney at Beattyville, against Jim Hargis, Ed Callahan, B. F. French, John Smith and John Abner. Wheeler represented the defendants in the trial at Beattyville last August.

Another Move in a Little Game.

If one were asked to name the most inaccessible and most remote county in Kentucky he would not go far wrong if he answered—Elliott.

It is to Elliott county that Judge Carnes has transferred the Hargis trial.

Elliott county is almost primeval. There is not a railroad within its borders. To reach the county seat, a town called Sandy Hook, it is necessary to ride from Pikeville, in another county, winding through mountain passes and fording the mountain streams. Once there the visitor is practically out of touch with the rest of the world. He is shut in.

How well Judge Carnes seems to have read the secrets of Jim Hargis' heart! If Hargis cannot be tried "by his own people" of Breathitt county, the trial in Sandy Hook ought to please him much.

The attorneys for the prosecution preferred Hargis-owned Breathitt county to Elliott. This fact shows how they regard the chances of a fair hearing in Elliott. They sought to have the hearing take place in any county west of Fayette. They were forced to take the wilderness of Elliott county, in the far eastern section of the State.

No fair-minded man desires a campaign of persecution. All fair-minded men want justice done. They do not wish the innocent to suffer, but they insist that the guilty be made to pay the penalty of their guilt.

Jim Hargis stands accused of heading a murder bureau. The law should have a chance to punish him if guilty. The sending of his case to Elliott county gives little hope to friends of law that law will have the ghost of a chance.

The way justice has been diverted, burlesqued and outraged in the whole course of the Hargis episode, and the way it has been set at naught with the utmost impunity by the anarchists of the western part of the State fill its friends with despair. Verily, there is something rotten in Kentucky. To be more exact, there is something rotten in the government of Kentucky. And some day those who have betrayed their trust are going to feel the force of a virtue-loving people's righteous indignation.—Courier-Journal.

PUBLIC SALE

—OF—
Blue Grass Land.

Wednesday Mar. 13,

1907, at 10 o'clock a. m., or thereabout, the undersigned, as agent for the heirs of Mrs. Margaret H. French, dec'd, and for Mrs. Bettie Payne French (owner in part of Tract No. 1 hereinafter described) will offer at public outcry, on the premises, three very desirable and splendidly located tracts of land, situated about two miles west from Winchester, and described as follows:

TRACT NO. 1.

Bounded on the south by the land of Ezekiel Laughlin (the old toll house lot) and the center line of the Winchester and Lexington turnpike, on the east by the center line of the old Hood's road, on the north by the right of way of the L. & E. R. R., and on the west by the center line of the Clark and Bourbon (commonly called Van Meter) pike and the old toll house lot, containing 100 79-100 acres. This tract is well watered, mostly in meadow, but with 12 acres in wheat, said growing wheat being reserved from sale; has orchard and tobacco barn and is of remarkable fertility. This tract is directly on one of the proposed routes of the Interurban road from Lexington to Winchester and could be subdivided into small farms to advantage.

TRACT NO. 2.

Bounded on the east by the center line of the Clark and Bourbon turnpike, on the north by the right of way of the L. & E. R. R., on the west by Mrs. W. H. Nolin's land, on the south by Mrs. J. H. Croxton's land; containing about 17 acres. This tract is all in wheat, said growing wheat being reserved from sale; is very fertile and has on it building site probably unsurpassed within the same distance from town.

TRACT NO. 3.

Bounded on the east by the center line of the Clark and Bourbon turnpike, on the north by the lands of Mrs. McCormick and J. D. Duval and wife, on the west by Mrs. J. H. Holloway's land and on the south by the right of way of the L. & E. R. R.; contains about 118 acres. This tract is also of good fertility, rising gradually from a fine frontage on the pike; is mostly in meadow, but with beautiful woodland of about eight acres of virgin soil, affording a fine building site.

All three of said tracts corner at Kinross Station on the L. & E. R. R., where said tracts will be offered separately, by the acre, according to the respective surveys of same, which will be read on day of sale. After having been offered separately, Tracts Nos. 2 and 3 will be offered as a whole.

Said tracts of land will be offered on credits of six and twelve months, purchasers being required to execute bonds for the purchase price, with good and sufficient sureties, payable to the Administrator of Mrs. Margaret H. French, deceased, except bonds for Tract No. 1, which will be payable in part to the administrator aforesaid and in part to Mrs. Bettie Payne French. All said bonds to bear interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum from day of sale until paid, a lien to be retained on said tracts of land by the vendors until the entire purchase money therefor has been paid.

A rare opportunity to secure first-class land, on good pikes, at railroad station, a short distance from town.

THE BREATHITT COUNTY NEWS.

A Captain In the Ranks

By GEORGE CARY EGLESTON

Copyright, 1904, by A. S. Barnes & Co., Publishers, 126 Fifth Avenue, New York

"Would you mind telling me the exact situation? Not that I need to know it in order to do anything you think would be helpful, but if I fully understand the matter I shall know better what to do in any little emergency that may come about."

"Of course, of course. It's simply this way: Duncan is so straight himself that it never occurs to him that other people are different. There are some things so utterly mean that he simply can't imagine any man capable of doing them. So he doesn't take necessary precautions. It was all right for him to offend Napper Tandy by doing his own best up there at the mines, but he ought to have known enough of human nature not to put himself in old Napper's power when he felt bound to offend him worse than ever."

Then Captain Will told in detail the story of the visit to Tandy, the bribe offer, the adverse report and the way in which Tandy had made the whole affair appear to have been an effort on Duncan's part to extort a bribe and betray those who had employed him. Temple readily grasped the situation.

"The worst of it is," he said, "Duncan can't even see the old scoundrel for libel without making matters worse. Tandy would stick to his story, and as there were no witnesses that story would seem probable to people who don't know Duncan. What are we to do, Captain Hallam?"

"Well, it all depends upon your shrewdness and circumspection. Tandy is president of the X National bank, you know. That's his club to fight me with. So little by little I've bought in there—through other people, you understand—so that now Stafford and I own forty-eight of the bank's hundred shares of stock, though on the books our names do not appear at all. Tandy owns the other fifty-two shares, I suppose, or at least he controls them. Indeed, whenever a stockholders' meeting occurs he votes practically all the stock, for it has been my policy to hide my hand by having the men who hold stock for me give him their proxies as a blind."

"Now, what I propose is that you shall manage somehow to get hold of a little block of the stock. Three shares will be enough to give me the majority, but I'd rather make it four or five shares. If we can get the stock, I'll surprise Tandy out of a year's growth by going into the stockholders' meeting, which occurs about ten days from now, and proceed to elect a board of directors for the bank. I'll select the men I want for directors, and the board will at once make Guilford Duncan president of the bank, leaving old Napper a good deal of leisure in which to enjoy life. He'll need it all to convince anybody that there's anything shady in Guilford Duncan's character after it is known that Will Hallam has made him president of a bank."

Hallam chuckled audibly. He was enjoying the game, as he always did. "Indeed, he will, but everything, as I understand it, depends upon my ability to secure the necessary shares of stock."

"Yes, it all hangs on that, and it will be a ticklish job. Tandy is as wily as any old fox. You're sure he doesn't know you?"

"Neither by sight nor by name." "You're sure nobody in his bank knows you and your relations with me?"

"Yes, I am certain. I was never in this town before, and as for my relations with you, why, they have existed for so brief a time, at such a distance from Cairo and are so obscure in themselves that I think nobody knows them. Besides, you might discharge me, you know, if that should become necessary."

"We won't consider that as even possible. Now, as to ways and means. You see, I depend upon you alone, and of course you must have a free hand. You mustn't consult me or Stafford or Duncan or anybody else. You are to act on your own judgment, furnish your own supply of sagacity and get that stock in your own way."

"I'll do it, even if I have to resign from your service and hunt another job. But I must have some money."

"Of course. How much?"

"Well, the stock will cost a trifle over par. I suppose—somewhat more than $1,000 a share. I should be prepared to buy a block of ten shares. You see, I might find a block of that kind which the owner would sell 'all or none.' I should have, say, $11,000 or $12,000 at instant command."

"All right. I'll have Stafford open an account with you in our bank tomorrow morning, with a credit balance of $12,000, and you can check."

"Pardon me, but I offer checks on your bank Tandy will suspect our alliance."

"That is true. You must have the greenbacks themselves. I'll send for Stafford now and have him give you the money in large bills tonight."

"Pardon me," answered Temple, "but if I go to him with so great a sum in notes?"

"Yes, I see. That would certainly arouse suspicion. What have you in mind?"

"Why, you or your bank must have banks in correspondence with you—banks in Chicago or, better still, New York?"

"Yes, of course."

"Can you not telegraph to one of them and arrange to have them say in response to a dispatch of inquiry from Tandy's bank that my credit with them is good for $12,000 and that if I wish to make use of some money in Cairo they will pay my drafts up to that amount?"

"That's it. That will be the best plan in every way. You'll need identification, and I'll arrange that. You're stopping at the hotel, of course?"

"No, I'll tell him not to, and—well, you know, I'm just now arranging a heavy loan for him. He is paying off the remaining purchase money for the hotel in installments. That's all, I think. I'll send the Fourth National bank of New York a night message. It will be delivered before banking hours tomorrow morning, but for fear of slips, you'd better wait till noon before giving that bank as your reference. Good night. Remember that everything depends on you, including Guilford Duncan's reputation for integrity."

Temple sat for half an hour thinking and planning. He was determined to make no mistakes that night trying to succeed. To that end he was trying to imagine, in advance, every difficulty and every emergency that might arise. At last he rose, took his hat, turned the lamp out and left the room.

"This is the very toughest bit of engineering," he reflected, "that ever I undertook. Well, so much the greater the credit if I succeed. But I don't care for the credit. I care only for Guilford Duncan in this case."

CHAPTER XX.

WHEN Duncan left his room on the evening of Temple's conference with Will Hallam he passed down the stairs and into the Hallam offices, where he still had a little working den of his own, for use when he did not care to see the people who sought him at his law office.

As he entered he found a little note upon his desk, and he recognized Barbara's small round hand in the superscription. Opening the envelope eagerly, he read the few lines within:

"You may come for your answer whenever it is convenient—any evening, I mean, for I am at leisure only in the evenings. There is a great deal for me to tell you, and it is going to be very hard for me to tell it, but it is my duty, and I must do it of course. I'm afraid it won't be a pleasant evening for either of us."

There was no address, but Duncan observed with pleasure as a hopeful sign that the little missive was signed "Barbara."

"She wouldn't have signed it in that informal way, with only her first name, if she meant to break off the acquaintance," he argued with himself. And yet the substance of the note was discouraging in the extreme, so that Guilford Duncan was a very apprehensive and unhappy man as he hurried to Barbara's home. He still held her note crushed in his hand as he entered the house, and he read it over twice while waiting for her to appear.

She could say no word as he stood looking eagerly into her eyes, as if questioning them. He, too, was silent for perhaps a minute, when at last, realizing the girl's distressing agitation, he gently took her hand, saying in his soft, winning voice:

"You are not well. You must sit down."

"Oh, it isn't that," she answered as she seated herself bolt upright upon the least easy chair in the room. "It is what I must tell you."

"What is it? I am waiting anxiously to hear."

"You must be very patient then," she answered, with difficulty. "It is hard to say, and I don't know where to begin. Oh, yes; I know now. I must begin where we left off when—well, that other time."

Duncan saw that she needed assistance, and he gave it by speaking soothingly to her, saying:

"You are to begin wherever you find it easiest to begin, and you are to tell me nothing that it distresses you to tell."

"Oh, but all of it distresses me, and I must tell it—all of it."

Again Duncan spoke soothingly, and presently the girl began again.

"Well, first, I can never—I mean I mustn't—I mustn't say 'yes' to the questions you asked me that other time."

"You mean when I asked if you would be my wife?"

"Yes. That's it. Thank you very much. That's the first thing I am to tell you."

"Who bade you tell me that?"

"Oh, nobody, or, rather, I mean nobody told me I mustn't say 'yes,' but after I had made up my mind that I mustn't, then auntie said I was bound to tell you about it all. I wanted to write it, but she said that wouldn't be fair and that I must tell you myself."

"But why did you make up your mind that you mustn't say 'yes'? Can you not love me, Barbara?"

"Oh, yes—I mean no—or, rather, I mustn't."

"But if you can, why is it that you mustn't?"

That question at last gave Barbara courage to speak. It seemed to nerve her for the ordeal and at the same time to point a way for the telling.

"Why, I mustn't love you, Mr. Duncan, because I cannot marry you. You see, that would be very wrong. When you—well, when you asked me those questions, it startled me, and I didn't know what to say, but after you had gone away that night I saw clearly that I mustn't think of such a thing. It would be so unfair to you."

"But how would it be unfair? It would be doing the one thing in the world that I want you to do. It would be giving me the one woman in the world whom I want for my wife, the only woman I shall ever think of marrying."

"You mustn't think of that any more. You see, Mr. Duncan, I am not fit to be your wife. I should be a drag upon you. You are already a man of prominence, and everybody says you are soon to become a man of great distinction. You must have a wife worthy of such a man, a wife who can help him and do him credit in society. Now, you know I could never be that sort of woman. I am only an obscure girl. I don't know how, I cannot talk brilliantly. I couldn't impress people as your wife must. I am not even educated in any regular way. I've just grown up in my own fashion—in the shade, as it were—and the strong sunlight would only emphasize my insignificance."

"Will you let me say one word at this point, Barbara?" broke in Duncan in spite of her effort to prevent. "You are wronging yourself and you are wronging me. As God lives, I tell you there is no woman in the world so fit to be my wife as you are. My only wish is that I were worthy to have such a wife! I intend, of course, to achieve all that I can—to make the best use I can of such facilities as I possess, but nothing imaginable could so greatly help me to do that as the inspiration of your love and the stimulus of knowing that you were to be always by my side."

An occasional tear was by this time trickling down the girl's cheeks. How could it be otherwise when the man she loved and honored above all others was so tenderly saying such things of her and to her with a sincerity too greatly passionate to be open to any doubt? How could it be otherwise when she knew that she must put aside the love of this man, her hero, the only love, as she knew in her inmost soul, that she could ever think of with rejoicing so long as she should live?

She would have interrupted the passionate pleading if her voice had been under control. As it was she sat silent while he went on.

"I have spoken of my ambitions first and of your capacity to help them not because such things are first in my estimation, but because you have treated them as worthy of being put first. There are much higher things to be thought of. What a man achieves is of far less consequence than what a man is. That which I ask of you is to help me to be the best that I am capable of being, and for you to be it with me. I want to make the most, the best, the happiest life for you that is possible. Oh, Barbara, you will never know how longingly I dream of a home with you at its head! You cannot know how absolutely the worthiness of my life depends upon such a linking of it with yours."

The girl had completely given way to her emotions now, but with that reason self mastery which was a dominant note in her nature she presently controlled herself.

"You do not know all," she said. "You have not heard all I have to tell you. You haven't heard the most important part of it. I have only told you what I thought on that evening when—you asked—questions. I still think that ought to settle the matter, but you seem to think—perhaps you might have consented to, or at least—oh, you don't know! There are other reasons—stronger reasons, reasons that nothing can remove."

"Tell me of them. I can imagine no reason whatever that could satisfy me."

"It is very hard to tell. You know I never knew my parents. Both my mother and my father died on the day I was born. I seem to know my mother, because auntie loved her so much and has talked to me so much about her all my life. But she never talked to me much about my father. His family was a good one, his father having been a banker, with some reputation as an artist also, and my father was his partner in business. But that is all I know of my father—no, that isn't what I mean to say. I mean to say that that is all my aunt ever told me about him and all I knew until the night when you asked me questions. After you went away that evening I went to my room and thought the matter out. I have already told you what conclusions I reached. When I had decided I went to auntie's room and sat on the side of her bed and told her everything. She cried bitterly—I didn't understand why at first. After awhile she said she didn't at all agree with me, in my conclusions and added:

"If the things you mention were all, Bah, I should tell you to stop thinking of them and let Mr. Duncan judge for himself, but there is something else, Bab—something very dreadful. I never intended to tell you of it, but now I must. You would find it out very soon, for Tandy's wife knows it, and if she heard that there was anything between you and Mr. Duncan she would make haste to talk of it, particularly after what has happened between Tandy and Mr. Duncan. Then you would never forgive me for not telling you."

"She went on then and told me what I must tell you. She told me, Mr. Duncan, that I am the daughter of a thief!"

"The girl paused, unable to go on. Duncan saw that she was suffering acutely, and he determined to spare her.

"You must stop now, Barbara," he said in a caressing tone. "You are overwrought. I will hear the rest another time when you feel stronger and send for me. I am going to go to bed now, so that you may rest. But before I go I want to say that nothing you have told me can make the least difference in my feelings or my desires or my purposes. You are what you are. Nothing else matters. When you feel strong enough I will come again and persuade you to be my wife. Good night!"

As she stood facing him, with unutterable distress in every line of her face, he leaned forward impulsively, but with extreme gentleness, and reverently kissed her.

Monday morning the home of Edward A. Bobbitt, a farmer near Mooresville, was destroyed by fire and two children were burned to death.

Missouri proposes to tax bachelors, and also raise the price of marriage licenses. That certainly looks like playing both ends against the middle.

The Touch That Heals. Is the touch of Bucklen's Arnica Salve. It is the happiest combination of Arnica flowers and healing balsams ever compounded. No matter how old the sore or ulcer, this salve will cure it. For burns, scalds, cuts, wounds or piles it's an absolute cure. Guaranteed by Jackson Drug Co., 50c.

Senator Foraker is still attempting to prove that the white people of Brownsville, Texas, shot up their own town and wounded and killed their own citizens just to spite the negroes.

This is Worth Remembering. Whenever you have a cough or cold, just remember that Foley's Honey and Tar will cure it. Do not risk your health by taking any but the genuine. It is in a yellow package. Jackson Drug Co.

A Humane Appeal. A humane edition of Richmond, Ind., Mr. U. D. Williams, 107 West Main St., says: "I appeal to all persons with weak lungs to take Dr. King's New Discovery, the only remedy that has helped me and fully comes up to the proprietor's recommendation." It saves more lives than all other throat and lung remedies put together. Used as a cough and cold cure the world over. Cures asthma, bronchitis, croup, whooping cough, quinsy, hoarseness, and phthisis, stops hemorrhages of the lungs and builds them up. Guaranteed by the Jackson Drug Co., 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

"One wife too many" is a headline in a contemporary. But some monogamists will wonder why that is startling enough for a headline.

The winds of March have no terror to the user of DeWitt's Carbolic Witch Hazel Salve. It quickly heals chapped and cracked skin. Good too for boils and burns, and undoubtedly the best relief for Piles. Sold here by Jackson Drug Co.

Senator Wm. Alden Smith began life by selling papers, but that is a great deal better than ending life as a peanut politician.

KODOL digests what you eat and quickly overcomes indigestion, which is a forerunner of Dyspepsia. It is made in strict conformity to the National Pure Food and Drugs Law and is sold on a guarantee relief plan. Sold by Jackson Drug Co.

San Francisco druggists are now putting Jap heads on poison bottles instead of the skull and cross bones.

Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup is a new remedy, an improvement on the laxatives of former years, as it does not gripe or nauseate and is pleasant to take. It is guaranteed. Jackson Drug Co.

Ex-Governor Black says that a politician can be killed quick by calling him cold. Yet all politicians are willing to "freeze on" to everything in reach.

To remove a cough you must get at the cold which causes the cough. There is nothing so good for this as Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup. The liquid cold relief that is most quickly effective, that stills and quiets the cough and drives out the cold. Sold by Jackson Drug Co.

Mrs. Frances Peter, widow of Dr. Robert M. Peter, the noted chemist of the old Transylvania University, died at her home near Lexington on Monday. She had declined to visit Lexington since the civil war, remaining true to a vow made over forty years ago that she would never again enter the city, although she lived within a few miles of Lexington. Mrs. Peter was ninety-one years of age and the mother of eight living children.

Health in the Canal Zone. The high wages paid make it a mighty temptation to our young artists to join the force of skilled workmen needed to construct the Panama Canal. Many are restrained, however, by the fear of fevers and malaria. It is the knowing ones—those who have used Electric Bitters, who go there without this fear, well knowing they are safe from malarious influence with Electric Bitters on hand. Cures blood poison, biliousness, weakness, all stomach, liver and kidney troubles. Guaranteed by Jackson Drug Co., 50c.

A Chicago woman left her husband because he swore at her when she asked him to hook her waist up at the back. Possibly the poor fellow had just finished a struggle with his own collar button.

No Case on Record. There is no case on record of a cough cold resulting in pneumonia or consumption after Foley's Honey and Tar has been taken, as it will stop your cough and break up your cold quickly. Refuse any but the genuine Foley's Honey and Tar in a yellow package. Contains no opiates and is safe and sure. Jackson Drug Co.

"The healthiest man is simply a mess of microbes," claims one cheerful germ expert. That explains why some men continually act as if something is biting them.

In 1897 I had a stomach disease. Some physicians said Dyspepsia, some Consumption. One said I would not live until Spring. For four years I existed on boiled milk, soda biscuits and doctor's prescriptions. I could not digest anything I ate; then I picked up one of your Almanacs and it happened to be my life-saver. I bought a fifty-cent bottle of KODOL, and the benefit I received from that bottle all the gold in Georgia could not buy. In two months I went back to my work as a machinist, and in three months I was well and hearty. May you live long and prosper!"—C. N. Cornell, Reading, Ga., 1906. The above is only a sample of the great good that is daily done everywhere by Kodol for Dyspepsia. It is sold here by the Jackson Drug Co.

The debate between Bryan and Beveridge has begun; but if the debates are given free it will never end.

You should be very careful of your health when you have a cold. Nearly all other cough syrups are constipating, especially those containing opiates. Given up to Die.

B. Spiegel, 1204 N. Virginia St., Evansville, Ind., writes: "For over five years I was troubled with kidney and bladder afflictions causing me much pain and worry. I lost flesh and was all run down, and a year ago had to abandon work entirely. I had three of the best physicians who did me no good and I was practically given up to die. Foley's Kidney Cure was recommended and the first bottle gave me great relief, and after taking the second bottle I was 'entirely cured.' Why not let it help you? Jackson Drug Co."
